From the Rector's Desk

Dear Friends in Christ,

Ascension Day this year will be on Thursday the 9th May. There will be an order one traditional language choral Eucharist at 7:30PM. Pentecost, or Whit Sunday, falls on the 19th May. Choral Evensong at 5:00PM marks International Day Against Homophobia and Transphobia. The speaker will be Dr David Alderdice. Trinity Sunday, 26th May our preacher at 11:00AM will be Fr Omid Moludy from Manchester. Fr Omid will also preside and preach at a Farsi language Eucharist at 2:30PM for our Iranian parishioners. Corpus Christi will be observed on Thursday the 30th of May with a celebration of the Eucharist at 1:00PM when the Walsingham Group will be present. Lunch will be served afterwards.

This is a time of great concern and worry for many of our Iranian parishioners as tensions between Iran and Israel are ratcheting up as I write. Whilst they have legitimate concerns about the current regime in Iran, and most of them have been forced to flee from their homeland, they nevertheless still have family and friends living there about whom they are very worried, especially if Iran is targeted in any escalation of the conflict. Please assure them of your support, friendship and prayers for peace and a just and lasting resolution of the many issues facing the Middle East at this time.

As I said in my sermon on Sunday 14th April, social media is full of people speculating and even war mongering about the Middle East. We in Northern Ireland know only too well about those from near and far who pronounced and pontificated about our conflict here and who even took sides when the reality was that probably 98% of them knew little or nothing of our history and the issues in Northern Ireland. We would all do well to apply the same logic to opinions about Israel, Palestine, Iran and the Middle East in general. Instead, as Christians whose faith was born and nurtured in the Holy Land, we should redouble our prayers for peace and support organisations, who are genuinely seeking just and lasting resolutions. I commend to you an organisation called 'Embrace the Middle East', which is a long established Christian charity which promotes a just peace in the Holy Land and supports hospitals and other positive development projects amongst Palestinians and seeks to cooperate constructively with Israel.

May we and all God's children soon know the blessings of the Prince of Peace in our troubled world.

Yours sincerely in Christ

Brian Stewart

SAFEGUARDING POLICY AT THE PARISH CHURCH OF ST GEORGE, BELFAST

It is the policy of the Church of Ireland to safeguard all children and vulnerable adults sharing in its ministry and to protect them from all forms of harm and abuse.

The Church of Ireland Child Protection Policy (known as The Safeguarding Trust) states that:

‘The Church of Ireland believes that children and vulnerable adults should never experience abuse of any kind. Everyone has a responsibility to promote the welfare of children and vulnerable adults and to keep them safe. The Church of Ireland is committed to implementing procedures and practices which safeguard all children and vulnerable adults.’

Recently Safeguarding responsibilities have also come to include all aspects of Church life relating to Health and Safety. Oversight of these matters is provided to the Select Vestry by a panel of four people who are appointed to deal with specific issues that might arise and also to ensure that all adults, who would be supervising the children of the Church, undertake a criminal record check to identify if they have committed any offence that would prohibit their involvement in Safeguarding at St George’s; this is known as an Access NI check. The Access NI check is renewed every 3 years and is completed by all clergy who officiate, employees of the Church, and the members of the Safeguarding panel. Training in Safeguarding policies and protocols is provided by the Diocesan office and the Clergy, Employees, and Panel members are required to complete this on a 3 yearly basis.

Annual audits of Safeguarding and Health and Safety are undertaken by the Diocesan office, either in electronic form, or by meeting with representatives of the Diocesan office.

Parishioners will have observed that there is information provided on the noticeboards in the Church hall, noting who the members of the Safeguarding panel are, who the relevant Social Services (Gateway) contacts are and the policies relating to Complaints and Disciplinary procedures, the Grievance procedure, the Anti-Bullying policy, the Communications Policy and Working in Partnership with parents/guardians Policy. These updated policies were approved by the Select Vestry in January 2023.

HEALTH & SAFETY POLICY AT THE PARISH CHURCH OF ST GEORGE, BELFAST

As a Church, we understand that we owe a duty of care to ensure the safety of those who use or visit our Church, hall or Churchyard. We are aware that as an employer, we must meet the requirements of health and safety law. In particular, we know that if an employer has five or more employees, they are required to have a written health and safety policy, under Section 2(3) of the Health and Safety at Work Act, 1974. Whilst this does not apply to St Georges because we have fewer than 5 employees, the Select Vestry is required to provide a Health and Safety statement for the Parishioners and all who use the Church buildings and car park.

Our policy is to ensure, so far as is reasonably practicable, that all activities at St Georges are carried out safely and do not pose a risk to the health of employees, congregation, volunteers, visitors and others who may use the Church, Churchyard or other parts of the building we are responsible for.

Whilst it is the duty of every individual to exercise personal responsibility for their own safety and the safety of others, the Select Vestry have overall responsibility for maintaining the safety of the buildings, regarding maintenance and repairs, modifications, inspections and tests and addressing any hazards. For example, we have regular electrical risk assessments and fire extinguisher servicing; we provide strict guidelines for the use of the kitchen; we are currently arranging for contrasting tiles to be laid at the steps of the Chancel, to make the steps more visible; and we are having a further hand- rail constructed, to assist the congregation in approaching the communion rail.

Accident and Incident books are maintained and are currently kept in the bottom kitchen drawer beside the cooker. All issues recorded are reported to the Select Vestry who will address any issues re repairs, change of practices etc.

Precautions are in place regarding the possibility of unknown persons gaining access to the building when activities involving the children of the Parish are taking place and when parishioners are working alone in the building.

Where problems cannot be corrected immediately, interim steps are taken to prevent danger. For example, regarding difficulties encountered in the Churchyard, we liaise with Belfast City Council, PSNI, and staff from the Welcome Centre, regarding safe practices.

Where necessary, we appoint someone who is competent to assist us in meeting our health and safety obligations, for example in maintaining the first aid kits and defibrillator and liaising with the organisation Safe Hands, who provide us with emergency aid training, including the use of the defibrillator. It is our aim in the very near future to arrange for a number of people to undertake First Aid training.

Let Nature Into your Garden

When you want to help local wildlife, native wildflowers are a great place to start. Here are some species you can add to your garden to give your local pollinators a boost.

Heather flowers are great for pollinators in the early spring, and it is also an important food plant for many species of caterpillar.

Nasturtium leaves are great for the caterpillars of large and small white butterflies, while their flowers will attract bumblebees.

Dandelions are vital for queen bumblebees, let them flourish in your garden.

Red valerian is a great choice if you'd like to try and attract hawk moths to your garden - hummingbird hawk moths use their long proboscis to reach the nectar at the base of the long flowers.

Ragged robin is a native wildflower, but garden varieties can do well in flowerbeds.

Scabious species add a splash of colour as well as nectar that will see insects through into the late summer or early autumn.

Spring garden wildlife

As your garden begins to bloom, there is plenty of wildlife to look out for! Here are just a few species to get you started.

Latest Statistics from Ethiopia

- Latest projections in Ethiopia show that almost 1 million children will suffer from acute malnutrition and 20 million people are in urgent need of humanitarian assistance, with 10.8 million including children says UNICEF.
- Relief Web states that disease outbreaks including cholera, malaria, and measles are increasing in northern Ethiopia and across the country.
- Roughly 7.06 million children remain out of school in Ethiopia which has been confirmed by Education Cluster and UNICEF.
- The WFP states that the ongoing drought has left an estimated 11.8 million people across Ethiopia facing severe hunger.

Specifically for the region of Tigray, our local partner tells us that around half of all primary-age children are not currently enrolled in school and around 15,000 teachers in Tigray are unaccounted for since the conflict.

TOP MAN

by Paul McLaughlin

Our high streets are a world away from the Belfast I remember as a youngster in the 1960s. Gone are the big department stores that still had the glamour of the 1930's with cage lifts, sweeping staircases and pneumatic tube systems that transported sales slips and money from very posh shop assistants to cashiers floors above them in the 'tube' rooms of the accounts' departments.

Gone are the hundreds of individually-owned small shops that sold everything from hardware to underwear. The tobacco shops, the emporiums, the handbag and leather stores, the half a dozen umbrella sellers, the myriad of others, most of whom boasted fine awnings that were designed to shade shopfronts from the sun, but came in handy when it rained. Which it did in abundance. Gone too, largely, is the quality of service that made customers feel special.

They are all now just memories as the malls swept all before them in the rush to modernise. No worries about the rain today as the big hitters of the high street are all under gigantic roofs, all spic and span, all very much the same.

Modernity, then on an April day in 1964, meant the Wimpey bar in Belfast's Wellington Place and an unforgettable lunch that I shared with my late father.

We had travelled to town on the number eleven trolley bus, sitting on the upper deck where my father lit a Senior Service cigarette, having struck a match on the little ridged metal bar called a stubber that was fixed to the back of the seat in front. I can still recall the smell of sulphur and how I was the only one 'upstairs' that wasn't smoking. Well, I was just eleven years old.

The results of the Eleven Plus exam had come out just weeks before and, luckily, I would be heading for the Christian Brothers' Grammar School come September. We'd passed it on our way into the city centre and it looked so grand in its red-bricked glory that I began to feel the first flush of anxiety that would mark my early days there.

But today was a different story. My father and I, for the first and only time in our lives were going clothes shopping for my new school uniform. I thought it strange at the time that my late mother was not involved, but that little mystery was soon to be resolved.

We ate hamburgers and French fries at the Wimpey, skinny chips my Dad called them, and drank tea out of Pyrex cups. I was fascinated that the placemats were printed with all that was available on the menu in vibrant, primary colours that looked good enough to eat.

All the time I watched as my father, in his good navy, serge suit, chatted about the shop that we were going to. He seemed as excited as I was.

I was not disappointed when after a long walk down the city's Royal

Avenue, where most of the population seemed to be walking to and fro and buses and cars honked and beeped for dominance in the roadway, we entered the premises of the gents' outfitters 'Jas Dunlop, Naval and Civilian Tailors'.

Inside was a world of peace and tranquility, interrupted only by the tinkle of a little doorbell that announced our arrival. Decked out in mahogany and brass the shop's main room exuded what I now realise was the atmosphere of a gentleman's club. And the gentleman who approached us was like something out of Central Casting. Think of Jeeves in an immaculate navy blue, three-piece-suit, dazzlingly white shirt and a tie, that certainly shone like silk, and the friendliest voice I had ever heard with no trace of a local accent to break the spell.

His outfit was matched only by his efficiency and within 20 minutes, a black duffle coat, black blazer, with school badge to follow, two pairs of grey trousers, short trousers of course, four pairs of grey knee socks with yellow and black bars, two grey V-neck jumpers, two grey, long-sleeved cotton shirts and underwear had been chosen and bought.

My father and the assistant who told me that his name was James, but, regrettably, not the James that owned the shop, chatted throughout like old friends.

We said our goodbyes and headed for the bus. "Do you know that man well, Daddy?" I said as we settled on the top deck once again.

"Not well, Paul, but he sold me my wedding suit when I left the Royal Navy in 1946 and top men like that never forget a customer."

A Poem by R.S. Thomas The Garden

It is a gesture against the wild,
The ungovernable sea of grass;
A place to remember love in,
To be lonely for a while;
To forget the voices of children
Calling from a locked room;
To substitute for the care
Of one querulous human
Hundreds of dumb needs.

It is the old kingdom of man.
Answering to their names,
Out of the soil the buds come,
The silent detonations
Of power wielded without sin.
